

UPDATES TO MODELS

---

The previously defined attributes in the Recipe model remained the same, however for this exercise a pic attribute needed to be added. On top of this added attribute, I've added two new functions to the model: `get_absolute_url` and `get_ingredient_list`. `get_absolute_url` gets the primary key of the object and allows the user to navigate from the list view to a detailed view of the object. `get_ingredient_list` strips the whitespaces and then splits the ingredients in order to be looped through in the detailed view.

FRONTEND INSPIRATIONS

---

The following screenshots are of recipe sites that I already use on a semi-regular basis in my own life. I never realized just how similarly formatted these sites are, but they're definitely what I think of when I think of a recipe site. They're fairly simple in their look and clearly laid out, especially the second one that lists all the types of baking recipes you can find on the site. That's what I'm striving for as far as look and feel for my recipe project — to be clean and easy to navigate through.

Maple Brown Sugar Cookies

690 Comments

The Perfect White Cake

1,121 Comments

Homemade Cheese Crackers

202 Comments

Corn Fritters (Flavorful & Easy)

29 Comments

CREME DE LA CRUMB

RECIPES ENTRÉES SIDES DESSERT BREAKFAST

Search...

QUICK & EASY

Easy Baked Lemon Chicken

30 MINUTES

Honey Garlic Chicken Thighs

25 MINUTES

Sheet Pan Sausage and Veggies

30 MINUTES

Chicken with Garlic Herb Butter

25 MINUTES